SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

The Target was a structure. The structure appeared to be made of concrete and has a flat roof line with elevated flat walls. The walls are elevated above and serve as an overhang to the structure -- there is a breeze way beneath the overhanging walls. There are pillars of concrete which are positioned along the breeze way. There appears to be two sections to the building which are tied together by a smaller lower level one (see sketch).

There is a parking lot to the south of the structure. There is a tall fence around the structure and others forming a compound. The fence appears to be 12-16' high.

The temperature at the site was sunny with a cool breeze blowing from the south.

On the inside of the structure there was an access area which is enclosed by dark glass -- there are security guards in the area which do not look familiar in dress or weapons. There are people walking around -- well dressed. People show badges and move to elevators and stairs. Very modern looking place.

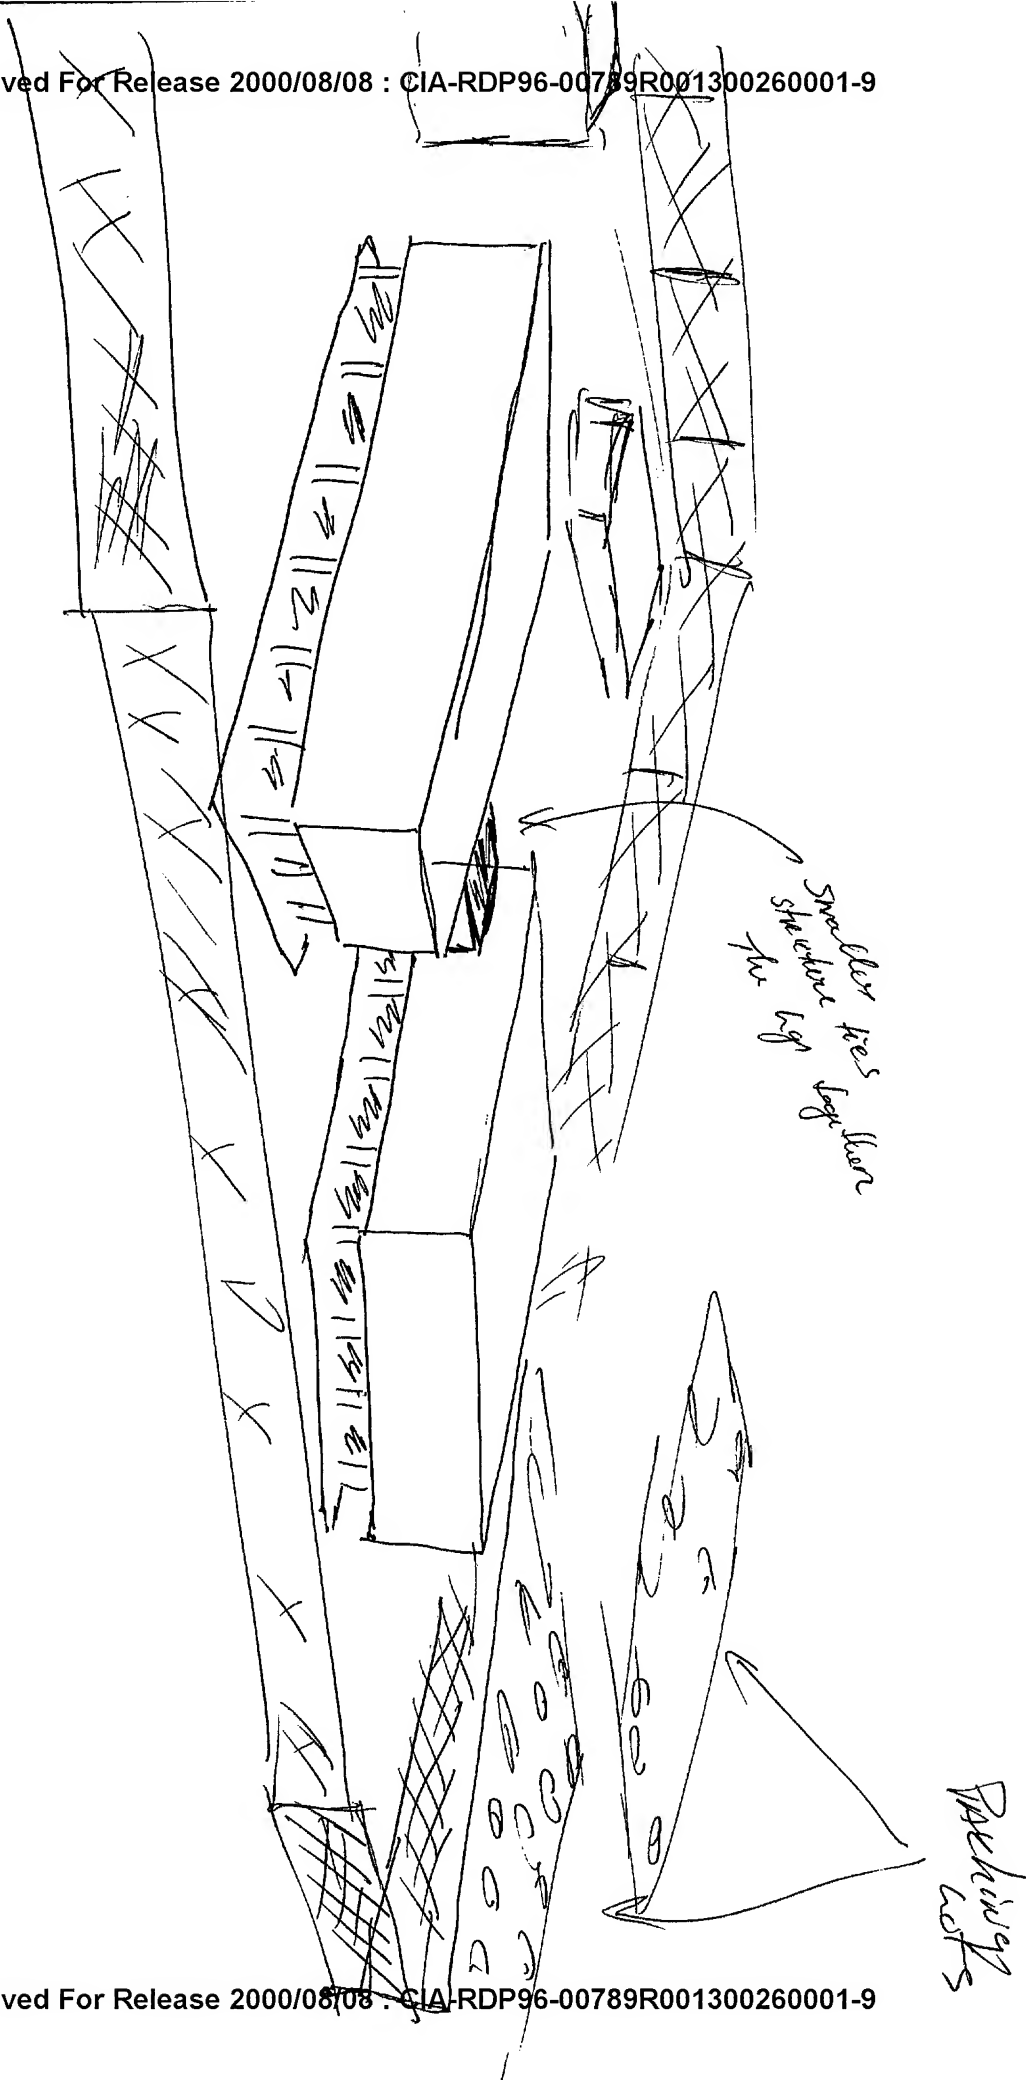

When asked to look at the function I perceived areas in the upstairs portion of the structure to be where the work of the facility occurs. There were rooms with tables full of electronic gadgetry, testing equipment etc. there were uncarpeted hallways with doors on either side. Wooden doors that led to plush offices. The place gives me a sense of science, research, study, development and testing.

There are about two or three floors of this type of operation -- there is also a large number of different activities that take place here.

There is a lot of stuff going on here. In one of the labs I saw tubes, glass, burners and tables. There were people running around with masks, gloves and white coats. Looked like the "clean room" of an aircraft manufacturing plant or something. Lots of white.

There is a lot made here, created, tested and evaluated. There are people that package things in plastic and foil -- the stuff looks like explosive -- like C4 explosive. The room is filled with technicians.

There is a man who is in charge of this operation as well as many other operations. He is located --although not presently there -- at the end of the building where all the offices are located. There is a lot of money here -- this goes beyond normal government type stuff. Nice looking offices! This guy has three or four phones on his desk with speakers. He has sofas and small gathering places in his office where he conducts business deals or conferences. There is world map on the wall also.
